ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

William Blake was a visionary English poet, painter and printmaker of the Romantic Age. Though labeled as eccentric by his contemporaries due to his idiosyncratic views of the world, the novelty, originality and expressiveness of his work propelled him post mortem to the role of seminal figure in the history of visual arts and, most importantly, poetry. To thank all of you that have, in one way or another, stood by me during this journey, I'd like to borrow one of his mystical and philosophical stanzas as a starting point:

*To see a World in a Grain of Sand
And a Heaven in a Wild Flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand
And Eternity in an hour.*

Toos. First and foremost, thank you for the immense freedom you have given me during these four years, both concerning my own research as well as getting involved in other projects, such as guiding students, revising manuscripts or even writing book chapters. Secondly, thank you for always keeping a critical eye on the most efficient ways to deliver our research's infinities and eternities within the hour.

Hans. Thank you for constantly teaching me, by the power of example, three important lessons: problems are, for most of the time, challenges to be addressed and solved. A specific research topic is just a trampoline for critical scientific thinking and humor is a very useful tool (as well as enjoyable per se). Employees are, at the end of the day (as well as throughout), people.

Toos and Hans, I'm very appreciative for having made me realize that research is not just the work you do in the lab, but also the style in which you present it.

Kees and Erik. Our collaborations have simultaneously taught me the importance of thinking big and visionary, as well as paying attention to phrasing and details. Thank you for the inspiration I have always found during our research talks.

Tjarko, Baukje Nynke, Annemarie, Joke. Thank you for your technical support and interesting discussions regarding research, hobbies and life, in general. I've very much enjoyed your humor and am highly appreciative for your support during these years.

The Molvir group. It was nice that we were in the same group, thank you for your feedback and advice.

Robert. Mentally, the equivalent of a caterpillar and octopus combined, you always have a pertinent opinion for every topic of conversation, an ever open ear to my sometimes exaggerated grieving and a refreshing and incisive sense of humor. Remember our talks about friendship, whether high expectations should be maintained when calling someone a friend? You were right, my friend, in act as in speech. Throughout my, often famishing, PhD time you've cooked the most sensational vegetarian (and very much fattening!) meals I've had in my life! Thank you for feeding me wonderful food and, more importantly, what always turned out to be intensely debated ideas. Looking forward to more of both!

Laura. Ethereal, childishly joking and extremely mature at the same time, you've always managed to surprise me with your strength of character and tenacity. You have been, throughout the years, my Romanian anchor point (such a lovely intricate language and heritage) and a true friend. Thank you for being the art in my life.

Eugene. "If there is no beat, there is no tango" (Juan D'Arienzo). Thank you, my dear long-time tango partner, for the ever-present beat.

Siebre. Friendships are work in motion and people come and go, which is why their input should be appreciated while present. I fully enjoyed your organized mind, your useful advice on how to manage a PhD, our time together and, last but not least...the, sometimes dangerous, practical lessons of learning how to bike in the land of canals!

Andreea, my colleague, my friend and my travel companion, I'm dearly looking forward to many more philosophical and geographical journeys together! Who knows? Maybe also when we're old and grey.

Edwin. You must have probably been amongst the first ones in line when good will, good humor and optimism were released – they've been with you ever since I know you Thank you for your long-lasting good will and cheerfulness!

De familie Hoenders. Jullie worden meer en meer mijn tweede familie. Ik geniet van onze levendig samenzijn en van jullie sterke persoonlijkheden en het optimisme waarmee jullie de wereld tegemoet treden. Margreet, ik ben heel erg dankbaar voor jouw hulp en moeite om mij Nederlands te leren. Ik hoop dat dag snel komt waarop ik met jou in het Nederlands kan converseren zonder fouten!

Leo. I learn from you, continuously. You teach me about the world, perseverance and patience, kindness and joy. How optimism is a state of mind that needs to be continuously cultivated. Where I see a weed, you see a wild flower. You're the only person I trust to hold my tiny infinity in the palm of his hand. I want to share with you just...this hour.

Familia mea. Sunt multi oameni pe care-i intalnim in viata, insa extrem de putini cei care ne sustin de-a lungul intregului drum. Hotararea si incapatanarea de care dau in mod repetat dovada le-am mostenit de la parintii mei, Rodica si Constantin. Sunt calitati esentiale, fara de care nu se poate merge inainte. Doresc sa va multumesc din inima pentru eforturile pe care le-ati facut de-al lungul timpului pentru ca noi, copiii, sa avem un viitor plin de frumoase oportunitati. Mama, faptul ca putem aborda practic orice subiect este o mare bucurie pentru mine; am invatat de la tine perseverenta. Printre altele, si in ceea ce priveste mersul la cumparaturi cu mine! Tata, apreciez enorm toate discutiile noastre trecute, prezente si, anticipativ, viitoare despre cultura si politica romaneasca si internationala. Dan Radu....Duchi, de la tine trebuie sa mai invat cate ceva despre umor, o calitate greu de mentinut in situatii dificile insa cu atat mai importanta. Va multumesc pentru sustinere, va sunt recunoscatoare mai mult decat pot exprima in cuvinte. Va voi fi recunoscatoare mereu!

The Netherlands. If you take a look at the world's map, you could see this country, with a bit of imagination, as the poet's grain of sand. During these six years here I've come to discover the wonderful world within and I am very much grateful for all the experiences this land has offered me.

Last but not least, I'd like to extend my gratitude to all those that have contributed to my development: relatives, friends, acquaintances, past and present colleagues. Thank you and good luck to you all!
